Brown, R. A., V. T. Wood, D. C. Dowell, 2006: Interpretation of simulated WSR-88D Doppler velocity signatures of tornadoes associated with nonuniform reflectivities. Preprints, 23rd Conference on Severe Local Storms, St. Louis, MO, USA, Amer. Meteor. Soc., CD-ROM, P9.10.

Dowell et al. (2005) employed an axisymmetric numerical model to study particle motions and concentrations in tornadoes. We used 1.5-mm-diameter raindrops in the model to produce flow and reflectivity patterns for three different sized tornadoes: medium, large, and very large. The model output then was scanned with a WSR-88D emulator to produce simulated reflectivity and Doppler velocity measurements within the tornadoes.
